If you are available Friday, great. If not we can talk on Monday. Hopefully I will have more info from my local regulators.

As far as I am aware, AllenCo has not submitted its certification that they are in compliance with the AOC and will be restarting operations. Under the AOC they are required to provide this certification. I am out of the office this week but I'm cc'ing Jeremy Johnstone so he can chime in on whether he has received such certification.

Just to clarify, AllenCo's attorney email to me was triggered by my email asking for a status update.

I am in DC this week, I may be able to give you a call when I return on Friday afternoon assuming my flight is not delayed. Otherwise, I can give you a call on Monday.

Best,
Rebekah

Hi, Rebekah. I understand you are handling Allenco for the EPA and that counsel for Allenco contacted you about resuming operations. It is my understanding that they have not yet contacted our office or installed the air monitoring system yet. Additionally, I do not think they have gotten clearance from LA Fire yet. I'd like to speak with you before I reach out to their counsel to make sure we both have full information and are consistent with each other. Do you have time to talk this week?
